

Guidance for you from your child

Imagine that you have been guided all of your life by your unborn child. That small voice in the back of your head helping you to know what is right is actually that of your child and children.

They take what you know and help you to follow the path of what is best for you and for the world as a whole. They love you perfectly. After all, you are their whole world at the start and are helping to shape the world that they will be born into.

The more you learn and the more you listen, the more they can help you.

You are driven in certain ways. Perhaps the strongest is to have a partner and seek fulfillment and bring new life into this world.

As you think about welcoming a baby, please learn and grow and become the best person that you can be.

When you hear a small voice teaching you to live in harmony with others, to cherish this world, to love life, listen. It is that of your child.

When you sense that some things are too much, or the wrong way to go, listen. It is your child directing you.

What does your body need to be healthy? What does your body need to help your child to grow healthy? Do you have a partner who loves you and will love and cherish any children that come? Perhaps that is when you want to share your body with another. Until then, and afterwards, cherish your child and listen. It knows what is best for you and guides you in perfect love as long as you have an ear to listen.